CAROL BAKER BOOKS

About the Author & Educator

Carol Robinson Baker is a native Texan and a third generation Baylor University graduate with a degree in English. Following in her mother's footsteps, she became an English teacher with a love of English grammar. She began her ESL (English as a Second Language) career at the Defense Language Institute: English Language Center on Lackland Air Force Base in San Antonio, Texas. There she was introduced to ESL methodology which launched her 30+ year career. She has taught children and adults both stateside and overseas. Twenty years later she received her Master of Education in Curriculum and Instruction from George Mason University. The title of her thesis was Children, Books, and Pleasure.

She began her writing career late in life. Now in retirement, she writes, publishes, tutors English Language Arts and ESL, and speaks in schools to children, teachers, and parenting bringing decades of experience to a new generation.

Carol and her husband of more than 50 years Bill, have three remarkable children and seven grandchildren who continue to be their greatest pleasure and blessing. She lives in Waco, Texas with Bill and her two dogs.
